

Waiting

36 1 2

Chapter 1 by Steph Curry

My whole life I've been waiting.

When I was 3-years-old I was waiting for dinner time.

When I was 11-years-old I was waiting for my Hogwarts acceptance letter.

When I was 17-years-old I was waiting for my true love, my soulmate.

Now I am 20-years-old. I know I am waiting. But for what I do not know.

I go to college in Santa Clara. I'm just a basic girl, grown-up with a loving mom, dad, and younger brother in San Francisco. My life is boring. I stand for nothing, I'm just an average person.

I start writing a letter to Matt, my brother when I hear a knock. I ignore it until it gets louder.

My roommate is probably off at some party, so it's just me in the dorm. I walk over and open the door, my hands sweating.

Standing in front of me is my mother, with mascara running down her face.

"Mom?" I ask.

"I mean, your brother and your father are gone. They went fishing together and never came back. Police and investigators are looking for them, but it's been a month and they haven't found them. They're going to drop the case.", she says, sobbing.

"Why didn't you tell me?", I say with anger on my tongue. My eyes start to water. She doesn't answer.

I was waiting. Waiting for her to answer me. My whole life I've been waiting.

Waiting.
